Highly respected veteran mentor Bill Nyers, who continues to deal with the ramifications of a once life-threatening battle with kidney cancer, has resigned as Woodbridge High School's head football coach.

Nyers met with the Barrons on Friday morning to tell them he was stepping down so that he can better take care of his health.

"I haven't felt good in a while," Nyers said. "I thought I was over the hump. I've had some setbacks. I was laboring all year long. Not being 100 percent, it just got to the point where I was just struggling. As I told the kids, I don't believe in short-changing anybody. If you can't be at the top of your game doing it, I don't think that's fair."

MyCentralJersey.com football analyst Marcus Borden, who is also the founder and director of the MyCentralJersey.com Snapple Bowl, a charity all-star game with which Nyers has been involved since its inception 26 years ago, said his longtime friend and colleague will be missed.

"It's a great loss for high school football," Borden said. "He's been a tremendous asset. He's a great motivator. He gets it in terms of how to run a program and keeping the kids top priority and teaching them all the life lessons football teaches you."

Nyers coached at Woodbridge from 1994 to 2002, leading the Barrons to a sectional title in 1997 before being named the offensive coordinator at Kean University, a post he held for six seasons prior to becoming the head coach at Plainfield. Nyers returned to Woodbridge in 2012. He is the only mentor to have coached in the Snapple Bowl for the Middlesex (as Woodbridge's head coach) and Union (as Plainfield's head coach) squads.

"I really enjoyed working with Bill," Woodbridge Athletics Director Joe Ward said. "I'm sorry to see him go. He has the program in a good position to continue to be one of the top programs in the GMC (Greater Middlesex Conference) and we wish him nothing but the best. We know he's still going to be associated with Woodbridge football forever, and we are happy for that."

Woodbridge recently finished 6-4 and qualified for the playoffs for a second consecutive year, falling to defending North 2 Group IV champion Phillipsburg in the quarterfinals (Phillipsburg went on to defeat reigning GMC White Division champion Colonia, which handed the Barrons a 27-26 setback earlier in the year).

The defeat came after the Barrons rallied for a thrilling 27-25 victory over St. Joseph on quarterback Tracy Fudge's touchdown pass to Quaasim Glover in the game's final seconds. Fudge and Glover were recently named first-team All-Area by the Home News Tribune.

Nearly a decade ago, Nyers was hospitalized at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City following a partial nephrectomy, an operation that removed a cancerous tumor from his kidney, leaving about one third of the organ intact. He has undergone multiple surgeries in the past several years related to his battle with renal cell carcinoma.

Nyers, who graduated from Woodbridge in 1984, played guard and linebacker for the Barrons. His son Anthony is the school's all-time leading receiver, his daughter Brittany was a cheerleader and his other son Nick is currently a junior following in his father's footsteps as a guard and linebacker.

"You can't ask for anything more than I've gotten out of this thing," Nyers said of his coaching experience at Woodbridge. "The school's been great to me, the players are great and I got to be with my family."

Carteret head coach Matt Yascko described Nyers as “a character” and said that all of the league’s mentors appreciated Nyers’ candor and respected his coaching ability.

“He always spoke his mind and never pulled any punches,” Yascko said, noting Nyers looked out for other players, not just his own. “He was always quick to praise one of your kids. He always tried to help you any way he could. I enjoyed coaching against him. It’s sad when you lose good guys like that, that’s for sure.”

Kean University head football coach Dan Garrett previously told MyCentralJersey.com that Nyers was “like another brother” to him.

“The most enjoyable years I’ve had were when we were on staff together,” Garrett said. “He’s just a great human being.”

Five Things

More Important Than Your Job

Posted on September 24, 2014 by Steve Roy
Re-posted by WoodbridgeFootball.com 12-20-2015

1 Your family! This is obvious I realize but what are you doing about it? You spend 40 hours each week staring at a computer screen and 10 hours a week spending quality time with your family. Just think about how you spend your weekends. You are tired out from the long week and your grueling commute and have barely enough energy to sit on the couch and turn the television on. Your family needs you. They need you to be present, involved, and engaged. I used to have a client who was insanely wealthy. The type of guy who would go to get his Ferrari serviced only to come home with a brand new one. I worked with him for several years and was saddened by the relationship I saw he had with his two young children. He was totally disengaged, let his nanny do all the work, and rarely saw them. Sure, he had millions of dollars but was a workaholic. Don’t do that. Your family needs you more than you know.

2 Your health. You may or may not agree with this, but your job is killing you. You are dying a slow death drawn out over the course of 30 or 40 years in the form of mind numbingly boring work. How would you feel if you woke up tomorrow and you couldn’t wait to get out of bed to get to work? Imagine loving what you did for a living and feeling more vibrant than you ever have. Is it possible? Absolutely! Sitting at a desk all day is bad for you. I mean the type of bad that is linked to heart disease and cancer. If you have a desk job, make sure you take plenty of breaks. Walk around, stretch, and watch what you eat. Just remember, regardless of how “successful” you are in your career, if you’re too ill to enjoy your life, it’s pointless. Take care of yourself first.

3 Your time. Your time is the most valuable resource you have, period. Yet you are spending it like Warren Buffet spends $1. You don’t think twice about wasting an entire week working on things that bore you to tears and have no meaning. It sickens me when I see people waiting in line for 40 minutes to fill their gas tanks because they are going to save $1.25. I always wonder if they really think that their time is worth less than $2 per hour. Time goes by so quickly, it really does. You are going to wake up one day and be 70 years old and wonder where the best years of your lives went. Oh, that’s right-to your job! Start to value your time and spend it wisely. Working in a job that means nothing to you for 20 years is not what I call wise. Find what excites you most in life and do that. Try to do it every day if you can. That’s what life is about.

4 Your purpose. Do you know your purpose here? Most people will never take the time to figure this out. They will spend their lives working in random jobs that may or may not be suitable for them, all just to collect a few dollars to pay their bills. What if you took the time to do some serious self-reflection to find what it is that intrinsically drives you to be the best you can be? What excites you? What are you excellent at? Answer these questions and start pursuing something bigger. I'm not going to preach to you that we all have some greater purpose in life, but I do think we all can do remarkable work in different fields. But first, we have to uncover our values and what matters most to us.

5 Your relationships. Jobs come and go but a good friend can (and hopefully does) last forever. But we often forget those who mean the most as we get caught up in the shuffle of daily life. "I'll call then next week" you say for the 10th time. Well, life will pass quickly and a month turns into a year incredibly fast. Make a commitment to reach out to a friend you have lost touch with. Your quality of life is in direct proportion to the quality of your relationships. Keep them.

The Sardone Report

By Nicholas Sardone, December 20, 2015

On a very personal note, it is sad to think that head coach, Bill Nyers has resigned his position due to stated health reasons and will not be on the sidelines next season. He will definitely be missed by his student athletes, colleagues, and many Barron fans.

Coach Nyers devoted thirteen years as our head coach. He leaves with a 70-58-1 record. This includes the 1997 Central Jersey group IV championship, six playoff appearances, and nine winning seasons. His 70 wins rank third in school history behind only Nick Priscoe and Frank Capraro.

Coach Nyers was old school, a tough task master, and a disciplinarian. He did not hold back his feelings. His offensive game planning and ability to motivate were second to none. Winning was important to him but he also expected his student athletes to behave and perform well in school.

He also expected his players to give back to their community, and they did by participating in various causes.

Finally, Coach Nyers valued the successful Woodbridge High School football history and made sure his players knew about it.

I want to wish Coach Bill Nyers and his family the very best in the coming years. He is welcome to join us in the bleachers next season as we cheer on the 2016 Barrons.
